WAVES OF TERROR STRIKE CONGO AGAIN

Make Sports Means To An End And Do Your Best Says Unitas

Johnny Unitas, star quarterback for the Baltimore Colts, professional football team, addressed an audience of more than five hundred last night in the room of the Murray State College Student Union Building. The football great was brought to Murray by the Backboard Club in an effort to further stimulate sports here.

At least a fifth of the audience last night was composed of youngsters who had followed their idol all the way from Baltimore to the Murray State College campus. Unitas, who has won three consecutive world championships, amused the audience with several stories about some of his fabled teammates. He told the large number of college and high school football players present that they should make sports a means to an end, rather than let the sport be an end in itself.

The primary reason for attending college is to get an education, he told his audience. He related that it was his own football ability which permitted him to attend college. "My parents were just so poor to send me" he continued.

After his talk Unitas answered several questions from the audience. A bug hurdle into professional football he told a questioner. A big hurdle into professional ball is big and he is fast. A person may be good in high school and college, but when he enters professional ranks, everyone there is also good, he continued.

He recounted the rigid training program that professional ball players follow in training camp and the schedule they meet during season play.

His biggest thrill, he said, was beating the New York Giants for their first championship. The "toughest" game he ever played was the second game with the Chicago Bears and the best game was the first game with the Bears.

He listed Norm Van Brocklin and Bobby Layne as the top quarterbacks of the game.

The audience was impressed with the quality of humbleness and modesty displayed by Unitas who is considered the best quarterback in professional football. He set thirteen records while playing at the University of Louisville which have not been broken thus far.

Dub Elkins, president of the Backboard Club, presided at the event last night and introduced the Murray State football coaching staff, basketball coach Cal Luther and Mrs. Luther, football coach Don Shelton and Mrs. Shelton and Frank Camp, football coach.

Dinah Shore Drops Long Time Sponsor

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Singer Dinah Shore is dropping her long-time sponsor.

This switch in the usual sponsor-performer relationship was announced Thursday by a spokesman for the blonde vocalist who said it resulted from a disagreement over her duties.

Chevrolet Division of General Motors, which has sponsored Miss Shore's TV show for the past 10 years, was turned down flatly by Miss Shore as her sponsor for next year because:

"The deal they offered was different from those of past years," said a spokesman for the singer. "They wanted her to be hostess for a series of big specials to tie in with sales drives and promotional campaigns."

"Dinah felt that she is a performer first and a saleswoman second. She didn't want to be an adjunct to the General Motors sales department."

The firm said in a prepared statement:

"We wanted Dinah very much. Dinah Shore has done a top-notch job for Chevrolet for the last 10 years and Chevrolet has tremendous respect, admiration and affection for Miss Shore personally and as an outstanding TV personality."

Benny Purcell To Be Honored By Backboard Club

Members of the Backboard Club plan to go to Anna-Jonesboro, Illinois on next Tuesday to honor Benny Purcell, coach at the high school there.

Purcell, former Murray State College basketball star, went into professional basketball circles when he left Murray State and has been coaching for the past two years at Anna-Jonesboro.

A bus will leave Rudy's Restaurant at 3:30 p. m. on Tuesday. Those wishing to have reservations should contact Robert O. Miller, Ronald Churchill or T. Sled.

Tractor Maintenance Project Is Held

The Calloway County 4-H Tractor Maintenance Project group met on Thursday night—Feb. 16 at the Conner Implement Co. There were 40 boys and girls present including parents and leaders.

The A-1 group studied "General Lubrication". The A-2 group studied "What Makes An Engine Run". The B group studied "Ignition Systems".

The next meeting will be held at the McKee Equipment Co. at which time the A-1 group will study "Clean Air for Engines". A-2 will study "Mixing Fuel and Air". B group will study "Valves and Valve Service".

New members enrolled were: Charles Greer, Thomas Collins, Donna Yarbrough, Jerry Dyer and Michael Lovins.

Jimmy Billington Suffers Painful Injury Wednesday

Jimmy Billington, Superintendent of the Street Department of the City of Murray, suffered a painful injury Wednesday while leading hay. Billington was atop a load of hay when he fell. He landed heavily on a sill to the barn door and broke two ribs.

He is at his home recuperating and is expected to be back on the job by Monday in a limited capacity.

ELEVEN CRUSHED

NAGANO, Japan (UPI) — Eleven persons were crushed to death Thursday night when a huge avalanche of snow, rocks and dirt smashed down on their flimsy houses at the village of Sakai, 35 miles northwest of this central Japan city.

Ten other persons crawled out of the debris to safety, but three of them were reported seriously injured.

STARVES TO DEATH

NEWCASTLE, England (UPI) — Mrs. Laura Brooks, 75, starved to death when her folding bed folded up and trapped her inside for three days, a coroner's court reported today.

Progress Of Rockfish In Kentucky Waters Is Pleasing To Biologists And Sportsmen Alike

FRANKFORT, Ky., (Special) — Progress most usually demands movement and what better progressive movement could an angler want than a mighty rockfish tugging on his line?

Kentucky anglers may have this exhilarating experience sooner than they think if expectations of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources for the rock fish are fulfilled.

Since December, 1957, the Department has stocked the striped (Ocean) bass in most of the state's major impoundments. Slowly reports are eking in that the new addition is growing and adapting itself and has actually spawned fertile eggs in Kentucky waters. Biologists now hope that their years of anxiety will shortly be rewarded with the first definite fertile spawn of the rocks in this state.

Dr. Hunter Hancock of Murray State College and several local sportsmen have been instrumental in the transfer of the Rockfish from the Santee-Cooper Reservoir to Kentucky Lake. Dr. Hancock has made extensive study and research, both preliminary to the transfer and afterwards.

A native of the North American Atlantic Coast, the rockfish is classified as one of the anadromous fishes—that is, one which lives in salt water and spawns in fresh water. However, with South Carolina's discovery in 1944 it has been learned that the rock can and will adapt itself to spending an entire lifetime in fresh water. The finding came about when a dam was built to create the reservoir and rockfish were accidentally trapped in the newly formed lake, unable to return to sea.

At first the reports that rockfish had been caught in the reservoir were taken lightly since it was felt that those caught by fishermen were those which had been trapped by the new dam. Further reports, however, indicated smaller fish were being taken and investigations proved that the rockfish had successfully spawned. Immediately following this finding, biologists began to wonder if this fish could not be successfully stocked in other inland bodies of water. Kentucky's Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources was in the forefront in this thinking and immediately decided it a worthwhile gamble and began stocking rockfish. Preliminary studies had indicated that Kentucky, Cumberland and, possibly, Herrington lakes could meet the needs of the rockfish. The first stocking took place in Lake Cumberland in December, 1957 and consisted of 12 rocks, ranging from two to 12 pounds. The fish were obtained from Santee-Cooper Reservoir which has been the source of most rockfish stocked in Kentucky.

In 1958 fisheries personnel returned from Santee-Cooper with 338 rockfish. Of this haul, 215 yearlings were put in Kentucky (Lake) 23 in Cumberland plus one

Lumumba Followers Swarm Into Streets, Pillage And Burn

By WILLIAM ANDERSON
LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — New waves of terror and violence rolled across the Congo today. Lumumbist youths attacked Roman Catholic missions and killed and mutilated a priest in Bukavu, a stronghold of Lumumbist forces in the north.

A United Nations spokesman said bands of youths protesting the death of Patrice Lumumba swarmed through the streets of Bukavu, capital of Kivu Province, sacked and burned a Roman Catholic mission and attacked priests and nuns.

A group of Lumumba supporters in Stanleyville beat to death a man who had openly criticized his successor, Antoine Gizenga. Gangs of Lumumba youths roamed the African quarters of Leopoldville during the night, attacking supporters of President Joseph Kasavubu and hacking one man in two.

Pledges Support to U.N.
President Kasavubu, who has been cool to United Nations operations in the Congo, did an abrupt about face today and pledged his full support to Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld.

To show his power he sent a battalion of well-armed paratroopers swinging past his U.N. headquarters in Leopoldville. They marched in perfect step and wore immaculate jungle green uniforms.

Kasavubu cabled Hammarskjöld, "at the moment when your person is being violently attacked by different countries we want to assure you again of our confidence and the wish of the legal government of the Congo to cooperate with you."

He hinted he would frown on any U.N. help for Gizenga who has been recognized by the Soviet Union and a dozen Afro-Asian nations as the sole leader in the Congo. He pointedly referred to his own government as the true and legal government of the Congo.

Kasavubu appealed for the U.N. to "help us reorganize the economy and administration" and asked Hammarskjöld to continue his aid in the Congo.

Two Held In Theft Of Car; Case Broken In About One Hour

Two juveniles have been apprehended and placed in the Calloway County Jail in connection with the theft of the 1959 Impala Chevrolet owned by J. W. Young. The car was taken Wednesday night from the Seventh and Poplar Church of Christ parking lot and was found Thursday morning on the Wiswell Road in a ditch.

The two boys, fourteen years of age, readily admitted taking the car after the theft was traced to them by the Sheriff's office and state police detectives.

A hearing will be held tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. in the chamber of County Judge Waylon Rayburn.

The two were apprehended within an hour after the investigation started.

Boys Held In Jail On Theft Charges

HOPKINSVILLE (UPI) — Three boys were held in the Christian County Jail here today charged with attempted safe robberies at Dawson Springs, Elkton and Hopkinsville.

State police, Christian County officers and Hopkinsville police clinked an investigation with the arrest of the boys here late Thursday.

Charged with an attempted safe cracking at the Dawson Collieries Coal Co. office and the theft of $1,000 worth of merchandise from a store in the same building Tuesday night were Jackie Jennings, 19, of Dawson Springs, and Rodney Perkins, 17, and Tommy Ray Jones, 15, both of Hopkinsville.

Authorities said Jennings, a former employee of the store, will be brought before the current term of Circuit Court in session here.

All of the loot taken in the robbery was recovered.

The trio also will be charged with grand larceny in the theft of a truck from a sheet metal firm here. The truck and welding torches it carried were used in the attempted safe cracking, police said.

Noble Brandon To Seek Office

Noble Brandon will be a candidate for Magistrate from the Hazel District, he said today. He will make a formal announcement at a later date.

K. B. McCuiston To Be Candidate

K. B. McCuiston announced today that he would be a candidate for re-election to the office of Magistrate for the Murray District.

A formal announcement will be made later he said.

Ask Return of Bodies

The U.N. command was trying to persuade Katanga provincial President Moise Tshombe to return the bodies of Lumumba and his two aides to their families for burial in hopes such a gesture might cool off the passionate reaction which their death aroused.

The Katanga government has said the three were killed by tribal villagers who caught them escaping and the graves were being kept secret so their followers would not try to turn them into shrines.

U.N. officials were worried about an increasing wave of brutality by Lumumba supporters in Kivu and Orientale provinces and the growing strength of Tshombe's armed forces on the other.

Among the latest ominous developments:

—Twelve Europeans, including a woman and a five-year old child, were beaten in Kalima, Kivu, by Congolese soldiers who arrested them.

—Twenty-five Europeans were reported arrested and beaten in Bukavu.

—A Belgian priest was knifed in Leopoldville by an African.

—Three French jet fighter planes were delivered to Tshombe in Elisabethville. A Katanga government spokesman said it was a "terrible mistake" but he did not say if they would be sent back or whether six others on order would be delivered.

HAZARD OF SPRING

WE have been reminded that the season is again at hand for fly-by-night skin-flint artists to take to the hinterlands to victimize property owners on all sorts of repair work, remodeling, landscaping and the like.

Just how they assemble their list of prospects is hard to figure out, but experience has proven here in Murray that widows who own their homes, or rental property, always are included.

It is hard, also, to understand how the same firms get by year after year anding and abetting in open fraud by the use of the United States mail in direct letters and circulars, whereas the mails would be barred to them if they attempted to advertise in newspapers and magazines.

In the past the Ledger & Times has made it a policy to cooperate with local institutions to prevent our readers from being "gypped" by out-of-town confidence artists.

It is extremely difficult to give names and cases because we have no intention of discrediting legitimate business, many of whom do a seasonal business and solicit only in the spring.

As far as we are able to go is to urge our readers to be extremely careful in making contacts with strangers. It has been our experience that local business houses and contractors are thoroughly capable of serving property owners in any and every capacity, at prices that are far below those quoted by out-of-town concerns.

And, it has been contending to note in recent years the outstanding firms that solicit here only on a seasonal basis have long since made connection with local firms which stand behind them and are here to service any and all work done by them.

And speaking of services, it is far more important now than ever before. Modern appliances such as heating plants, stoves and radios, washing and drying machines, television and radio sets, and the like, need servicing from time to time and local dealers are always at hand to keep their equipment performing at peak capacity.

One of the oldest and best service departments is operated by local automobile dealers. They have become such a vital part of modern life in a community that the average person would not think of buying an automobile in a community other than his own.

We may have an early spring this year because Easter is coming so early. If this is true we may soon expect a swarm of out-of-town salesmen of all types. Those who spray trees and shrubs, those who claim to be experts in the use of chemical fertilizers, those who repair and install furnaces and electric heating plants, those who sell various kinds of siding for old houses, those who paint and clean and best of all, those who peddle toys and those who attempt to convince you nobody here knows how to do nothing, anything, or even television aerial installation.

When these once-a-year visitors arrive at your home ask these men questions. Local merchants and dealers are protected against out-of-town competition in some lines by our city license system. Make it your business to find out whether the salesman calling on you has a Murray city license to serve you, or whether he needs one.

We are not basing on all out-of-town salesmen. As we stated in the beginning, many of them are doing a legitimate business, and making an honest living. We do, however, wish to protect our readers and we don't want to see them cheated. The best general practice is to do business with local folk.

GLOOM WORKS OVERTIME—Raymond E. Wolfson, Labor Department manpower expert, says the unemployment situation is gloomier than at any time for the past two decades with release of these figures. The count rose 500,000 in January to 5,355,000, postwar record for the month.

Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Oakley

Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Oakley have left to attend another seminar of the Parker Chiropractic Research Foundation in Fort Worth, Texas.

This will be the 120th seminar conducted by Dr. Parker. The newest and most up-to-date methods of giving a more efficient health service to the public are being taught at these seminars, Dr. Oakley said.

Dr. Oakley is participating in the research being conducted by this foundation.

The Oakley children will enjoy their first plane ride. They are planning a most enjoyable and productive four days. The family will return to Murray on Monday.

Roman Prydatkevich, professor of musicology and violin at Murray State College, is just establishing himself as one of the leading composer-violinists in America.

Galen G. Miller, well known former resident of New Providence, was buried last Sunday. His death came while at work at the U.S. Army Depot in Granite City, Illinois.

A group of West Kentland red clover growers met at the county agent's office recently and organized a Kentland Growers Association.

By CHARLES F. HINDS
State Archivist

It was pointed out here last week that at the six men who played leading parts in the struggle over the Compromise of 1850, three were Kentuckians — President Zachary Taylor, U.S. Senator Henry Clay and Congressman Linn Boyd. Taylor had a plan of his own, and gave Clay and Boyd his help in their fight for the compromise in their respective houses.

The question now examined is whether that 1850 effort to avert a civil war did not in fact upset the balance that had been achieved in the Missouri Compromise of 1820 by admitting as a free state California. A large part of it lay south of 36 1/2 degrees North Latitude, the transcontinental dividing line between free and slave territory that had been established by the earlier compromise.

Discovery of gold in California in the first month of 1848 had started a westward stampede of adventure prospectors. With a population of almost 100,000 predicted for the end of the year, a statehood convention met at Monterey in September. The need for a state government to establish law and order in California was generally conceded, but an electric chill ran through the South when the Monterey convention produced a state constitution prohibiting slavery.

South Carolina seemed almost to have reached the point of seceding. Her most distinguished son, John C. Calhoun, urged opposition to admitting California as a free state. He wrote: "I trust we shall persist in our resistance until the restoration of all our rights, or the strain from the subjection of those exciting topics of sectional character which have hitherto produced painful separations in the public mind and have left each of us a martyr to the cause of his own section." A few days later he was in the South, and the rest of the South that breaking the Union was the greatest of calamities. As President of the United States, he said, he would maintain the Union and its integrity to the full extent of the obligation imposed and the power conferred by the Constitution.

Zachary Taylor died a few more than six weeks later. When in 1850 the admission of California as a free state was agreed to, it was a compromise. It was a compromise between the two sections, and it was a compromise between the two sections.

When the admission of California as a free state was agreed to, it was a compromise. It was a compromise between the two sections, and it was a compromise between the two sections.

the tributary length of the other two lakes.

The rockfish is cooperative, so far as the fisherman is concerned, since it may be taken by practically any method of fishing. It prefers live bait such as minnows, shrimp and crabs, but will also strike at artificial lures fished at any depth. They have even been reported caught on a trot line. The best seasons for catching rockfish are spring and fall, which is typical of most Kentucky basses, however, since captivated in fresh water, the strippers are biting at most any time of year. June to January, say the expert anglers, is the best season.

In order to aid in furthering the rockfish success story in Kentucky, the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has requested all fishermen to report any suspected rockfish catches. From the reports biologists can better tell the growth and physical condition of the fish. A limit of one fish was outlined this year in the regulations and that was primarily for the same reason—information for the biologists. The Department has also requested that fishermen return to the water any rockfish that are caught because it will enhance the possibility of a successful spawn and therefore provide greater fishing potential in the near future.

That killing happened Jan. 31, 1960. Miss Grayson and Mattox both were Mississippi State students at the time, and she testified at his trial that he told her he was going to strangle Mrs. Tate with a coat hanger because Mrs. Tate wanted to break off their affair. Now it is alleged that Mattox, trying for a new trial, offered two jail mates $1,000 to kill Sarah.

A Stirring Western Suspense Novel The Lean Rider by CLIFF FARRELL

CHAPTER 34
ABEL BARBEE spoke to the crew: "Everybody with stand watch tonight. But no circle rider. Spot yourselves at a distance from the bedground and set tight. Shoot at anybody who comes near the herd and can't identify themselves. If the cattle are stampeded, let em run. No matter how much they scatter, we'll find 'em sooner or later. It's you I don't want bunched up."

Mitch Jones accompanied him on the wagon and they drove away toward Walkerville.

Paul Drexel was stationing men around the herd. Lisa Randolph and Hester Barbee joined him. Hester riding a gentle horse sidesaddle. Paul placed them near a group of pines at a spot he believed was safest. They dismounted and tied up their horses. Paul left them, taking up vigil at another point.

They wrapped themselves in blankets. Even so, under a sky ablaze with pinpoint stars Lisa felt the blue cold of the mountains penetrating with knife-like keenness.

Something aroused her during the night. She started to her feet, the blanket dropping from her shoulders. Hester was already standing tensely. Lisa was shaking at the keenness.

A woodblock friction match spluttered into life. Again it was to be an explosion! "Blast you!" Hester gruffed. "Blast you!" She fired. She fired a second time.

This lashback upset the horses of the intruders. Lisa could hear them crashing through the sagebrush. Hester fired two more shots, the powder flame darting into the night. In that flicker of light, Lisa glimpsed a rider half out of the saddle on a plunging horse that seemed to be tangled in the limbs of a fallen dead pine.

There were at least two more invaders, for two pistols were replying to the flashes from Hester's weapon. Lisa heard bullets strike brush and boulders nearby. She and Hester crouched down, hunting shelter.

"Ride!" a man yelled frantically. "Get out of here! Fast! I dropped the damned stuff, and it's lighted!"

That was Kemp Travis's voice. Horses were galloping away. However, from the sounds, the one closest at hand was still trapped in the dead-fall.

Its rider screamed, "Wait! I'm snagged in—!"

That was cut off by the heavy flash of an explosion. The force of it drove Lisa stumbling back and she sprawled. She twisted around and covered her head with her arms as debris rained down around her. A sizeable length of tree limb struck within a yard of her. Pebbles and fragments stung her body. But she escaped material injury.

Somebody was moaning in agony. The dead pine tree, ignited by the explosion, burst into flame, the dry needles burning fiercely. The glare lighted the scene.

Lisa screamed, "Hester!" Hester answered. She was unhurt. They joined each other and stood listening, terrified.

The cattle had once again stampeded, but the run was northward and away from them.

As the rumble of hooves receded they again could hear the terrifying moaning nearby. They moved toward that sound. It began to fade, and when they were a dozen yards or so away it ended entirely.

Lisa forced herself to walk nearer. She halted, chased by horror. The ignited tree was sending its greatest burst of fire, and the red glow it cast now was smoky and dim.

The body of a man was draped over the torn sagebrush. He had been hurled there by the explosion. The mingled form of a horse lay nearby.

She heard the sound of wheels, moving fast. A voice was shouting. He and Lisa had returned from Walkerville. Paul was calling out also and riding toward the scene.

She had to try three times before she could lift a sound to guide them to where she and Hester waited.

Abel and Mitch came running up on foot and Paul arrived and dismounted. Lisa pointed. She chattered an explanation—and they walked ahead.

Presently they returned. Abel said, "It was a man who rode for Travis called Red Lettler. He generally hung around with Coe Slade."

He stood lighted by the murky crimson glow. All sound of the stampede had faded in the distance. "Well, we've got a spoiled herd on our hands for sure this time," he said.

Abel and Paul Drexel caught up their horses. Abel held a stirrup and offered his hand to Lisa. She accepted it. Suddenly she moved against him. His arms went around her, drawing her close. He kissed her, questioningly at first, then with realization and a full and growing hunger as he felt her response.

He held her for a time. Slowly he released her. "We've been a long, slow, stubborn time comin' to understand this," he said.

He lifted her onto the horse and stood peering at her in the faint light, his fingers gripping hard on his knee. "Don't you get hurt any worse than you have been in this damned business over these cows. I can't lose you, too."

She bent and kissed him again. "What are you going to do Abel? I can't lose you either, you know."

"Stampede 'em in the gap," he said. "Travis will likely try to rush his drives through as fast as he can get 'em movin' at daylight. He knows we're scattered and will be held up a couple of days or more. He knows too that Dishi & Dishi will cancel our part of the contract if we don't meet delivery date." He added, "We've got some blazin' powder of our own now."

Lisa heard the wagon begin moving southward. Abel joined Paul for this venture, leaving Mitch with the crew.

Hester joined them and they headed southward toward the gap.

When they reached the slope that ascended to the gorge, Abel said, "This is close enough." Lisa and Hester remained there as the wagon rolled onward. They dismounted and found what shelter they could alongside the trail.

Chill hours passed before the sound of the wagon returning, enlivened them. It was driven by Paul, and he was alone. The vehicle's contents had been reformed. He left the wagon with them, took Lisa's horse and rode back toward the gap, a rifle slung in his arm.

The night was long. Occasionally Hester slept exhaustedly, her head on Lisa's shoulders. But Lisa could not sleep.

Dawn was in the sky when they arose and stood in the icy cold, listening to a distant and intangible murmur. Cattle were in the gorge. The sound grew in volume.

A red glow sprang into being. It rushed into fiery length—like the flash of meteors.

This ribbon of flame was in the mouth of the gorge, and though it was tiny at this distance Lisa knew that it was kerosene, spilling down the walls and ignited by a torch.

The flash of explosion came next, sharply outlining the rock ledges and ridges. A moment later the dull slamming of the reports reached them. That was followed within seconds by the loud rumble of running cattle.

"Some six thousand animals were jammed in the pass, struggling to escape by the way they had entered..." the story continues tomorrow.

Barney Riley Guest Speaker At Murray Grove Dinner Meet

Barney Riley, the newly appointed Kentucky State Manager of The Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle congratulated the Murray Grove on receiving the honor of being named the No. 1 Grove in the state of Kentucky for 1965.

The grove selected a 50 star flag for the recognition presented by the national headquarters in Omaha, Nebraska.

The dinner meeting was held on Thursday evening, February 9, at 6:30 at The Woman's Clubhouse with Mrs. Jessie Cole presiding.

Mrs. Goldie McKeel Curd, Past State Manager, who resigned late last year, introduced Mr. Riley to each member individually and to the group as a whole.

Mr. Riley, of Princeton, Kentucky, has been in fraternal activities for the past 12 years. He has served in South Western Michigan and Northern Indiana. He has been Special Representative and District Manager of Southern Indiana.

Mr. Riley reported on the activities that he had attended for the 70th anniversary of The Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle.

It was announced that delegates to attend the Kentucky State Convention would be selected at the March meeting.

Louise Baker, State First Vice President and Loretta Culver State Treasurer of Kentucky were in attendance.

The drill team was composed of representatives from the Junior grove: Janie Young, Faye Cole, Jennie Shelton, Sherry Outland, and Diane Vaughn.

Chambers Home Is Scene Of Meeting Spring Creek WMS

Mrs. Chester Chambers opened her home for the meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Spring Creek Baptist Church held on Monday afternoon at 1:30.

"Witness Where We Are" was the subject of the program presented with Mrs. Thomas Lee as the leader. Others appearing on the program were Mrs. Max Bailey, Mrs. Hafford Bean, and Mrs. Dwight Watson.

Plans were discussed for the observance of the week of prayer for home missions March 6-10. Mrs. Chambers, president, presided at the meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Duke Suddenly Trapped 3 Ways

By MARTIN LADER

Duke, bombarded from all sides, is caught in a three-way trap today while Cincinnati appears to have left all its troubles behind.

The Blue Devils, who only a few days ago were riding high atop the Atlantic Coast Conference standings and were boasting one of the finest sophomores in college basketball — Art Heyman — are now without both following a 71 upset defeat at the hands of Maryland Thursday night.

Heyman was the first to go, the victim of an ACC suspension for his part in a free-for-all when Duke played North Carolina Feb. 4. Taking the court without its top scorer, Duke fell before the spirits, hustle and sharp shooting of the Terrapins.

Lose Two Straight

The defeat was the second straight for the Blue Devils and dropped them behind North Carolina and Wake Forest in the ACC race.

Bob McDonald led Maryland in scoring with 18 points, while Doug Kirtler had 16 for Duke. The game was tied nine times during the first half, but under the direction of McDonald the Terrapins sped to a 12-point bulge late in the final period.

Cincinnati, which couldn't get organized at the beginning of the season, won its 13th consecutive game with a 67-64 decision over Wichita Thursday night and stretched its Missouri Valley Conference lead to a full game over second-place Bradley.

The Bearcats gained a slim 33-31 half-time advantage and held on tenaciously as the lead changed hands a dozen times in the second half. Paul Hogue finally connected on a hook shot late in the period to put Cincinnati ahead for good at 58-57. Hogue shared scoring honors for the night with Wichita's Lanny Van Eman, each with 26 points.

Debbie Reynolds and Tony Randall tumble into a haystack and fall in love in MGM's franchise farmyard epopee, "The Mating Game," with Paul Douglas, Fred Clark and Una Merkel adding to the hilarity. It's MGM's laugh-happy hit of the year! Plays Sunday at the Murray Drive-In Theatre.

Bradley Wins Easily

Bradley, the only team with a fair chance of overhauling Cincinnati, took an easy 90-74 decision from Houston in a non-conference clash.

Mack Herndon notched 30 points for Bradley, 21 of them in the second half, and Chet Walker contributed 27 points to the winning effort. Houston was paced by Gary Phillips with 26 points.

A near-riot disrupted the Missouri Valley Conference tilt between Drake and Tulsa at Des Moines. The estimated 3,500 fans became so uncontrollable that officials were forced to stop the game to allow Drake coach Maurice John to ask the crowd for order. The officials had threatened to forfeit the game to Tulsa if the fans continued to litter the floor. Drake eventually won the game, 88-84.

In other action, St. Louis rolled over North Texas State, 86-57; Providence downed DePaul, 81-77; in a game matching National Invitational Tournament foes; Utah topped Denver, 67-62; Florida St. beat Georgia, 77-68; New York University defeated Manhattan, 71-65; Niagara edged Seton Hall, 73-76; and Xavier (Ohio) beat Iona, 58-54.

NEW LOOK, MAYBE—Robert Gaynor, Birmingham, Mich., tailor, models his new look in men's clothing—a matching cummerbund to be worn with a business suit. It has two pockets for watch and coins. He also matches. For day or evening, Gaynor says.

VARITY "Return of Dracula," feat. 73 mins., starts at 1:00, 3:33, 6:49, and 9:30. "She Walks By Night," feat. 83 mins., starts at 2:30, 5:26 and 8:22. MURRAY DRIVE-IN "Platinum High School," 93 mins., starts at 2:00 and 8:50.

1926 Racers to Join Bench Against Western Saturday

The rampaging Hilltoppers of Western Kentucky will be invading the Sports Arena to meet the Murray State Racers Saturday night.

The Hilltoppers are presently on top of the OVC with an 8-1 record. Western also has an overall record of 13-5, which includes victories over such highly-ranked teams as De Paul and Xavier.

Coach Ed Diddle's team is paced by a tremendous threesome who seem to push their opponents around like the wind. Harry Todd, Bobby Rascoe, and Charlie Osborne are all potent shooters who are hard to stop.

Osborne is presently fourth in the OVC with an average of 19.4 points per game. Rascoe is close behind him with 18.5 per game. Todd has been hitting 10.6 per game.

On Jan. 14 the Thoroughbreds almost upset the Western quintet at Bowling Green. The Hilltoppers managed to put it out of the fire in the fading seconds, 79-77.

Last year the Racers crushed the Hilltoppers in the MSC arena, 87-72.

MSC's first basketball team which played in the winter of 1926, will hold a reunion here

Saturday. The reunion, sponsored by the Murray State Alumni Association, will be the team's first. It will begin with a dinner with the executive officers of the alumni association. Following the dinner, the ex-players will sit on an adjoining bench with the Thoroughbreds.

Those attending the reunion will be: Warden Gilbert, Murray; Dr. Alex F. Russell, Clarksville, Tenn.; Preston Holland, Murray; Vernon James, Tulsa, Okla.; James T. Brookshire, Hardinsburg; Auburn J. Wells, Murray; and Gaylon Lamb, Richmond, Va.

Riflemen Defeat Eastern But Lose Match to UK

"Murray State ROTC rifle team just to the University of Kentucky at Lexington Friday, 1391-1372.

High scorer for Murray was Johnnie Gentry, senior from Jeffersontown, with 281 points out of a possible 300.

Saturday the Murray team defeated Eastern Kentucky State at Richmond by a score of 1298-1387.

Kenneth Heath, freshman from Mayfield, was high scorer with 284 points.

Win Over Western Next Best For Season Success

SPORTS PARADE

By OSCAR FRALEY

United Press International

facts and figures:

Horses may not bet on people but sometimes they can be just as peculiar as us two-legged animals. Racing trainers use "all kinds of pets in the stall to keep their outburners tractable and happy but New York restaurateur John Bruno had a new experience.

Bruno bought a horse named Nossent after it had won six races in Italy and imported the speedster. It couldn't win for losing. But now they have great hopes for him. He perked right up when an Italian-speaking exercise boy started to handle him... just homesick, I guess.

The British became upset when it was announced that their Ryder Cup team planned to arrive in England only two days before this year's matches, regarding it as a sign of indifference, but Sammy Snead has another explanation.

Matter of Money

"It's a matter of dollars and cents," says Sam, who is a qualified expert in the matter of dollars and cents. "You get expensive money and nothing else so who's going to give up an extra week just to practice?"

The Slammer took quite a verbal licking last summer when he was in Ireland for the Canada Cup and passed up the British Open shortly thereafter to fly home for a lucrative tournament in the U. S. The British felt insulted, asserting that as a former winner he should have appeared in the 100th anniversary of "The Open."

"Bunk," Sam shrugs. "First place money was $800 when I won it in 1946 and my expenses were more than $2,000. It doesn't mean a thing any more when it comes to money for testimonials and such."

In other words, would you fly home from a vacation to attend the office picnic? "Pat Olivieri, manager of NBA light heavyweight champion Harold Johnson, admits that as a puncheon's pilot he's a good restaurant man—and lucky to be that."

Smell of Success

"I was a blacksmith in an age when horses had gone out of business," said the Philadelphia steak king. "I couldn't find a job so I borrowed 40 bucks from a pal and opened a little open air

The Murray State College Thoroughbreds dropped from contention for the Ohio Valley Conference championship last weekend with losses at Eastern and Morehead, but they could still have a successful season by beating Western here Saturday night.

A win over the loop-leading Hilltoppers would be the next best thing to winning the championship to Murray fans. It would also give the Racers a chance for the best Murray season since 1956-57.

The Racers lost out in their try for the OVC title in heart-breaking fashion. Two of their four losses were by two points and one by three. They were edged by Western 77-79, Eastern 73-75, and Morehead 91-88. Their other loss was a convincing 110-77 one to Eastern. The Racers have won six conference games.

Overall, the Murray record is 11-9. Games remaining after the Western invasion are with Arkansas State here Feb. 22 and with Tennessee Tech there Feb. 28.

Coach Carl Luther reports that his team will be ready for the big one with the Hilltoppers. "We expect it to be a typical Murray-Western game," he said. "We know that Western is one of the best teams in the country and that it will take an all-out effort to win, but you can bet we'll give every thing we've got."

Starters for the Racers will be Larry Bale and Jarrell Graham at guard, Gene Herndon at center, and Mike O'Riordan and Ron Greene at forward. Bale is averaging 11.5 points a game, Graham 13.0, Herndon 13.6, O'Riordan 11.2, and Greene 9.8.

Four of the five starters are seniors and will be playing their last game against the Hilltoppers. Only Greene, a junior, will be back next season. Other seniors on the squad are Harold Wilkins, Ken Peterson, and John West. The Racers have managed only one win over the Toppers in the last three years but they have played them to the hilt in each game.

Last year Murray won at home 87-72 and lost at Bowling Green, 65-57. Two years ago the Racers were beaten in a double overtime at Bowling Green, 87-77 and by 12 points, 75-62, at Murray.

All reserve seats for the game have been sold, but general admission tickets will be sold at the door. Game time is 8:15 p.m.

Hialeah suggested that possibly it was because of an increase in bookmaking. But this is denied by Miami Crime Commission Director Dan Sullivan, who doesn't think that off-track betting is a penance either.

Which brings to mind the report of Meyer Lansky, one-time gambling czar of Florida, when he heard the proposal for off-track betting. "If it happens I will leave Florida," he said. "I would not raise my family in such an atmosphere."
